Job Applicant Privacy Notice

As part of any recruitment process, the organisation collects and processes personal data relating to job applicants. The organisation is committed to being transparent about how it collects and uses that data and to meeting its data protection obligations.

What information does the organisation collect?

The organisation collects a range of information about you. This includes:

- position applied for;
- your name, address and contact details, including email address and telephone number;
- details of your education, training, qualifications, skills, experience and employment history;
- information about your previous and current employer and job roles, levels of remuneration, including any benefit entitlements;
- criminal record information;
- whether or not you have a disability for which the organisation needs to make reasonable adjustments during the recruitment process;
- positions which have a driving element, whether you have a medical condition which would affect your ability to drive now or in the future;
- information about your entitlement to work in the UK.

The organisation may collect this information in a variety of ways. For example, data might be contained in application forms, CVs or resumes, obtained from your passport or other identity documents, or collected through interviews or other forms of assessment.

The organisation may also collect personal data about you from third parties, such as references supplied by former employers, schools, Universities, Colleges or other training providers. The organisation will seek information from third parties only, once a job offer to you has been made and will inform you that it is doing so. If you secure a position which has a driving element, a third party would be the DVLA and we would perform a driving licence check, to safeguard the company by checking the validity of your driving licence and any endorsements you may have. This is also completed to comply with our insurers requirements.

Data will be stored in a range of different places, including on your application record, in HR management systems and on other IT systems (including email).

Why does the organisation process personal data?

The organisation needs to process data to take steps at your request prior to entering into a contract with you. It may also need to process your data to enter into a contract with you.

In some cases, the organisation needs to process data to ensure that it is complying with its legal obligations. For example, it is required to check a successful applicant's eligibility to work in the UK before employment starts.

The organisation has a legitimate interest in processing personal data during the recruitment process and for keeping records of the process. Processing data from job applicants allows the organisation to manage the recruitment process, assess and confirm a candidate's suitability for employment and decide to whom to offer a job. The organisation may also need to process data from job applicants to respond to and defend against legal claims and supply government statistics.

The organisation may process information about whether or not applicants are disabled to make reasonable adjustments for candidates who have a disability. This is to carry out its obligations and exercise specific rights in relation to employment.

If your application is unsuccessful, the organisation may keep your personal data on file in case there are future employment opportunities for which you may be suited. The organisation will ask for your consent before it keeps your data for this purpose and you are free to withdraw your consent at any time.

Who has access to data?

Your information may be shared internally for the purposes of the recruitment exercise. This includes members of the HR team, interviewers involved in the recruitment process, managers in the business area with a vacancy and IT staff if access to the data is necessary for the performance of their roles.

The organisation will not share your data with third parties, unless your application for employment is successful and it makes you an offer of employment. The organisation will then share your data with former employers, schools, universities, colleges or other training providers, to obtain references for you.

The organisation will not transfer your data outside the European Economic Area.

How does the organisation protect data?

The organisation takes the security of your data seriously. It has internal policies and controls in place to ensure that your data is not lost, accidentally destroyed, misused or disclosed, and is not accessed except by our employees in the proper performance of their duties. Internal policies and controls include; restrictions to systems and databases, restricted access to hardcopy paperwork, documents and files, password protected databases, updating system software, managing and removing access to data.

For how long does the organisation keep data?

If your application for employment is unsuccessful, the organisation will hold your data on file for 12 months after the end of the relevant recruitment process.

Additionally, if you consent to the organisation keeping your personal data on file for 12 months, for consideration for future employment opportunities, at the end of the 12 month period, or if you withdraw your consent at any time prior to the end of the 12 month period, your data will be deleted and/or destroyed.

If your application for employment is successful, personal data gathered during the recruitment process will be transferred to your personnel file and retained during your employment. The periods for which your data will be held will be provided to you in a new privacy notice.

Your rights

As a data subject, you have a number of rights. You can:

- access and obtain a copy of your data on request;
- require the organisation to change incorrect or incomplete data;
- require the organisation to delete or stop processing your data, for example where the data is no longer necessary for the purposes of processing; and
- object to the processing of your data where the organisation is relying on its legitimate interests as the legal ground for processing.

If you would like to exercise any of these rights, please contact Human Resources, SMH Products Ltd, 29-35 Maxwell Street, South Shields, NE33 4PU, or, HR@smhproducts.com

If you believe that the organisation has not complied with your data protection rights, you can complain to the Information Commissioner.

What if you do not provide personal data?

You are under no statutory or contractual obligation to provide data to the organisation during the recruitment process. However, if you do not provide the information, the organisation may not be able to process your application properly or at all.

Automated decision-making

You will not be subject to decisions that will have a significant impact on you based solely on automated decision-making, unless we have a lawful basis for doing so and we have notified you.

Changes to the Privacy Notice

We reserve the right to change this notice at any time and it will be updated to comply with the requirements of GDPR.
